Day 4:11/11/2019

Time: 10.00 AM

Focal area discussion-based workshop: - Online Community Development

The fourth day of the programme basically focused on the three core pillars of this initiative leading to a holistic approach to elevating online teaching and learning. Firstly, the emphasis on developing online teaching communities underscores the significance of collaborative support and knowledge exchange among educators, fostering a collective wisdom that transcends geographical boundaries. Secondly, the program emphasizes the art of crafting and adapting teaching materials for online learning, recognizing the need for dynamic, multimedia-rich content that engages and empowers learners in virtual environments. Lastly, the program delves into the curriculum design tailored to the online landscape, acknowledging the unique challenges and opportunities it presents, including asynchronous and synchronous learning, technological integration, and the alignment of assessments. Altogether, this multifaceted approach equips educators with the tools, strategies, and connections necessary to navigate the complex world of online education and cultivate enriching and inclusive learning experiences for students.

Day 5 :12/12/2019

Time: 9.30. AM

Focal area discussion-based workshop: Accreditation of Higher Education Institutions and Its Impact on Improvement of Quality

"Accreditation of Higher Education Institutions and Its Impact on Improvement of Quality" provided a platform for in-depth discussions on the significance of accreditation in higher education. The insights and recommendations generated during this workshop serve as a valuable resource for institutions seeking to enhance their educational quality and navigate the complex landscape of accreditation. Accreditation continues to be a driving force for positive change in the higher education sector, ensuring that institutions meet and exceed recognized standards of excellence.

The Faculty Development Programme aimed to equip educators with the tools and knowledge necessary to evolve from traditional teaching methods to becoming effective facilitators. Dr. Issac Paul, an esteemed speaker, led the program, addressing diverse aspects of this transformation over the course of five days. Participants left with an enriched perspective on their roles as educators and a renewed commitment to facilitating effective learning experiences. The program's comprehensive coverage of teaching enhancement, self-assessment, digital transition, and quality improvement made it a valuable experience for all attendees.

The five-day training programme ended with vote of the thanks by Dr. Jisha K.C. (Joint Coordinator IQAC) proposed the vote of thanks.

TWO-DAY NATIONAL SEMINAR: NEP AND HIGHER EDUCATION SCENARIO IN HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES: OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES

IQAC & Department of Political Science in association with Kerala State Higher Education Council

Date: 6th & 7th October, 2022

The Two-Day National Seminar on "NEP and Higher Education Scenario in Humanities and Social Sciences: Opportunities and Challenges" commenced with great enthusiasm and participation from scholars, academicians, and students from various parts of the country. Hosted by the IQAC & Department of Political Science in collaboration with the Kerala State Higher Education Council, the seminar aimed to delve into the implications of the National Education Policy (NEP) on the landscape of higher education, particularly in the realms of humanities and social sciences.

Day 1 Highlights:

The inaugural session began with a warm welcome speech by Dr. Sanand Sadanandan, setting the tone for the insightful discussions ahead. Dr. A Biju, the principal, extended his felicitations, highlighting the significance of the seminar in addressing contemporary challenges in higher education.

The keynote address was delivered by Dr. Rajesh Kalarivayil, Assistant Professor at the Department of Social Work, Tezpur University, Assam. Dr. Kalarivayil shed light on the key provisions of the NEP and its potential impact on the humanities and social sciences domain.

This was followed by sessions led by esteemed resource persons. Dr. Salah Punathil, Assistant Professor at the Center for Regional Studies, School of Social Science, University of Hyderabad, provided valuable insights into the evolving paradigms in higher education pedagogy.

The post-lunch session saw Dr. Smitha Sasidharan Nair, Assistant Professor at the Centre of Health and Mental Health, TATA Institute of Social Science, Mumbai, engaging the audience with her expertise on interdisciplinary approaches in social sciences education.

Day 2 Highlights:

The second day of the seminar commenced with continued fervor. Sessions on various dimensions of the NEP and its implications unfolded with engaging discussions and thought-provoking presentations by scholars and participants.

Dr. Shafeer P S, the IQAC coordinator, extended his gratitude through a vote of thanks, acknowledging the efforts of all involved in making the seminar a success.

Conclusion:

Welcome - Ms Amritha M V, I MA English

Vote of Thanks- Dr Sanand Sadanandan, Seminar Coordinator

Mass Media has been free and almost independent throughout its history. This form of communication of information that reaches heterogeneous people through digital or published transmission channels that could build public opinion, persuade the public, circulate government policies, provide entertainment and promote political ideologies should obviously uphold ethics to the core. Media was an inevitable part of Indian freedom struggle since great freedom fighters like Gandhi made extensive use of media. Afterwards it became more active with the introduction of the print media. Indian media especially newspapers in vernacular medium was the very base of Indian social reform movement. Even after independence media continued to occupy a prominent place in our country. Some of the most popular news feeds continued to gain far-fetched popularity, even during the time of emergency media occupied an important position. In the post liberalised era with the advent of globalisation, privatisation and liberalisation external influences drastically affected our media. In spite of the growth of media industry and business turnover nowadays, the lack of quality, authenticity, reliability and diversity are some of the important issues faced.

The seminar's focus was on the role of media in the present scenario; it also emphasised how far it becomes propaganda of the government and the extent to which media plays a significant role in moulding democratic India. It is high time the unfair growth of media needs to be discussed, checked and prevented for a better future of the nation.

All the themes and subthemes of the seminar were dealt with during the technical sessions and paper presentations. Democratic media/Secular media, Free Media & Corporates/E-democracy, Fake news and Propaganda, Development and Media, Constitutional rights & Media, Subaltern space in media, Judiciary & Media, Post truth became the topic of discussion. The seminar got good feedback from the participants.

International Webinar on Materials in Medicine

DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY, BIO-CHEMISTRY AND IQAC

The international Seminar on “Materials in Medicine ”, organised by the Department of Chemistry, Biochemistry and IQAC of MES Asmabi College, P Vemballur, Thrissur, Kerala.

Materials for medicine research studying the fundamental aspects of a broad range of materials, designing, synthesizing and fabricating novel functional materials and exploring their biomedical and biological applications. The creation of new materials with improved properties is allowing medical devices to perform better and provide functionality that until recently was thought impossible. The proven process has the research expertise and years of experience needed to take advantage of new materials. In lieu of the above, MES Asmabi departments jointly organised two days International webinar in “Materials in Medicine ” on 3rd and 5th October 2020. The webinar was hosted on the Google Meet platform and was live telecasted on YouTube on both days.

Dr.Ansar E B, Head of the department of Chemistry welcomed the gathering after which Dr.A. Biju, Principal, MES Asmabi college, P Vemballur thrissur inaugurated the function.

The resource person for the first day 3rd October was Dr. Payam ZarrinTaj, PhD, Postdoctoral researcher, School of Chemical Engineering, Oklahoma State University, USA, well known for his immense expertise in conducting systematic reviews and quantitative analysis in the field of polymeric materials and biomedical application. He has been delivered a talk on the topic of Polymer Application in Medicine. The second day of webinar was on 5th October and the resource person was Dr. Sijo Chemmannur, PhD, Scientist, Precision Nanosystem, Vancouver BC, Canada, well known for his vast expertise in biochemical field especially in the genetic material coding. Ha has been delivered a talk in the field of Vaccine candidates for SARSCoV2. Delegates including academicians, scientists and students from different parts of the world actively took part in the webinar and various questions, relevant to the topic were addressed. Further the valedictory session was conducted on last day of the webinar and it was chaired by Dr.V M Asma, vice principal MES Asmabi college.
